Multicultural counseling involves therapists demonstrating an understanding of their patients and their struggles with cultural issues, racism, and other related experiences. Always emphasizing caring and empathy, multicultural counseling enables therapists to better address unique challenges, considering how a patient's experience may be different from their own.

In another study (Ladany, Inman, Constantine, & Hofheinz, 1997), no relationship was found between coder-rated multicultural case conceptualization skills and the completion of a multicultural graduate course or the amount of professional experience with ethnically diverse clients. Both studies underscore Myers, Echemendia, and Trimble's

Most therapists receive training or education on cultural competency and multicultural counseling, and therapists who wish to learn more can pursue continuing education.

Case Study I. Tina is a 17-year-old high school junior who resides with her parents and 14-year-old brother. Tina's mother is concerned about her daughter's recent 22-pound weight loss.
