Korngold's most famous work, "Die Tote Stadt", is still regarded as one of the major operas of the 20th century. He disdained the thought of being regarded merely as a film composer. After leaving Warners in 1947, he returned to 'serious music'.

Korngold's complete piano works are currently being recorded by the American conductor-pianist Alexander Frey for Koch International Classics. Further recognition came in the 1990s; two full-scale biographies of him appeared almost simultaneously. One is Jessica Duchon, Erich Wolfgang Korngold (Phaidon Press, 20th Century Composers series, 1996).
