Few behaviors are more controversial in contemporary U.S. society than the Islamic practice of hijab (Al Wazni, 2015). The hijab is also frequently referred to as a veil or headscarf. Within an Islamic framework, Muslim women above the age of puberty commonly wear the hijab to conform to precepts in the Quran that emphasize the importance of modesty.

2 days ago · Muslim Women wear the hijab because they believe that God has instructed them in the Quran to wear it once puberty has been reached. So it is simply a means of fulfilling one of God's commandments according to the Islamic faith. The hijab is a mark of a woman's Islamic faith, much like a flag or a banner. As an act of Modesty.
