Very nice first edition of one of the most striking works on the power of preaching ever published. It has been reprinted by Banner of Truth, but rare in its original form. Spring, Gardiner. The Power of the Pulpit; Or, Thoughts Addressed to Christian Ministers and to Those who Hear Them...

The pulpit, we may not rightly forget, is a means, and subsidiary to, a purpose higher than itself. Beyond the pulpit is the altar. The pulpit is to lead men to the altar. Yet, although a means, [8/9] the pulpit should be none the less a power. Every means the Church uses ought to prove its potency.

Chapter 1: The Pulpit in the Shadow. We are all aware that in countless courts of opinion, the verdict on preaching has been rendered and the sentence passed. All this slim volume asks is a stay of execution until one other witness be heard. The tardiness of this witness is not to be construed as dramatic timing.

1/5/2018 · Here are seven thoughts. 1. Let the Bible set the agenda for your weekly pulpit ministry. I love preaching through the Bible verse by verse. I'm not smart enough to decide what the congregation really needs to hear this week. So they're going to get John 5:1-18 this Sunday. Why? Because last week they got John 4:43-54.

1/3/2021 · The pulpit IS responsible, (said by a great christian), [until people from the pulpit to the elders to the lay people admit it nothing can get done] and perhaps time on the outside looking in will get us to do right by God to clean house and to follow the scriptures.

6/3/2012 · Other sexual behaviors within the ministry are such heinous "unfruitful works of darkness . . . it is shameful even to speak of the things that they do in secret” (Ephesians 5:11–12). To face the crisis, we must correctly understand the nature of the problem, ask God to search our own hearts, and be committed to restore each one caught in sexual sin “in a spirit of gentleness ...

27/3/2020 · We could do that, but I wonder if that’s the best way to do the work. Expository preaching is where the ministry of the Word begins—with a commitment to faithfully expound the Scriptures so that they will do the work which God intends them to do: “so then faith comes by hearing and hearing by the Word of God” (Rom 10:17).

the great inferiority of the ministries of the temple in comparison with those of the christian church. "The least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than" the greatest prophet; but prophets were superior to priests, and the humblest Christian is, therefore, superior to the greatest priest of the Old Testament, as he is, indeed, to the greatest mere official in the Christian Church.

"The brethren" must mean the members of the Church addressed, with special reference to the amalgamation in one body of Jews and Gentiles, or to the one family (Ephesians 3:15) in which they were brethren, Peace is the echo of Ephesians 1:2, and denotes the apostle's desire for the continuance among them of the peace with God to which they had been admitted, as well as the prevalence of peace ...

10/6/1999 · Early in His ministry Jesus charged His listeners, "Do not think that I came to destroy the Law or the Prophets. I did not come to destroy but to fulfill" (Matt. 5:17). He told the religious hypocrites, "You search the Scriptures, for in them you think you have eternal life; and these are they which testify of ...

24/4/2014 · Caught In The Pulpit: Leaving Belief Behind will most likely satisfy those openly hostile to the God of the Bible, and maybe some compromising Christians, but those with a truly inquiring mind will see it for what it is, another attempt to discredit God and His Word, and to convince the world that the church is in disarray and headed for extinction.

The "citizenship" of Christians is in heaven, meaning God counts them as citizens of His coming government (Philippians 3:20). Christians are to be ambassadors of the government that Jesus will set up when He returns to earth (Ephesians 2:1; 2 Corinthians 5:20). Ambassadors are representatives of one government, living in another.

1/1/2003 · 19. Supernatural power. George Barna reports that shockingly few Americans understand the power and significance of the supernatural world--the real supernatural dimension. Most people deny the existence of the power of the Holy Spirit and are blissfully ignorant of the spiritual battle that rages around and within them.
